BRANDY & EAU DE VIE

Technically, brandy is a category of spirits that is created from any type of fruit, although specific laws differ country to country. The most common fruit used are grapes of certain varieties which is the case for famous regions/appellations such as Cognac and Armagnac. Though apple is another popular base ingredient, as proven in the Calvados appellation.

Historically, Australia has a subdued relationship with brandy, and most grape spirits produced currently are found in fortified wines. However, in recent years with the birth of boutique and high-quality distilleries, some incredibly sophisticated and complex brandy has been birthed.

Consider international stunners such as Louis XIII consisting of spirits that are over 100 years old and requires generations to produce.

We are proud to offer a selection of delicious and high calibre Australian brandies.
